Introduction of the Protein Crystallization in Space

Hiroaki Tanaka

Japan Space Utilization Promotion Center

The protein crystallization by using space environment, where less convection and less buoyancy are expected, has been developed by several sectors. In this session, the results of recent space crystallization and some mechanisms of micro-gravity effect will be reviewed. Then new project of NASDA with using GCB and Russian Service Module and the frame work for users will be explained.